On Gramilliy

Standard Conventions of English is one of the easiest and most crucial sections of SAT English. It consists of specific rules of usage, grammar, punctuation, and contextual cases where context can affect the overall meaning of a sentence. According to our experience, students who have a solid knowledge of grammar and an average level of reading comprehension could score 600 or higher on the English part.

Due to the nature of the SAT exam, questions that many students answer correctly do not significantly influence your total score. However, if you make a mistake on a question that many students answer correctly, you will be penalized more than the points you could gain elsewhere. Grammar falls under this category: many students who prepare for the SAT start their journey by mastering grammar; therefore, they usually do not make mistakes on the exam.

To address common challenges among our students, such as difficulty in fully grasping grammatical concepts, we created the "ULTIMATE GRAMMAR BOOK" for all SAT learners. This book covers themes such a*s Boundaries, Form, Structure, and Sense, as well as Punctuation rules,* which are essential for mastering grammar and ensuring high scores on the exam.

We fully recognize and acknowledge the concepts and structures taken from renowned sources, and we give credit to them at the end of the book. The sole purpose of this project is not to sell but to benefit those who struggle with learning and practicing grammar.

How to use Gramilliy?

You should go through concepts and learn by heart. At the end, you have a PRACTICE SECTION where you can solve 50 questions taken from REAL SAT EXAMS. This book has everything you need to know about SAT Grammar.

Attention

The current edition of this book is the FIRST edition. We understand and are open to the possibility that we may have made mistakes. The good news is that we @satashkent can fix those mistakes! If you encounter any errors, please contact @satashkent_admin through Telegram Messenger.

I. PART OF THE SPEECH (Basics)

ATTENTION

The English Section in Digital SAT is built on seven parts of speech. Each word in a sentence has a specific role, and understanding these roles helps in sentence construction and error identification. The seven parts of speech are:

1. Nouns

2. Pronouns

3. Verbs

4. Adjectives

5. Adverbs

6. Prepositions

7. Conjunctions

1. NOUNS

A noun is a word that names a person, place, thing, or idea. Nouns can be common or proper, singular or plural, concrete or abstract

Examples:

Person: Albert Einstein, teacher, doctor
Place: Paris, school, mountain
Thing: book, computer, river
Idea: happiness, freedom, intelligence

Correct Usage:

The cat is sleeping on the sofa. (Thing)

She visited London last summer. (Place)

Kindness can change the world. (Idea)

Common Mistakes:

Confusing common and proper nouns: "I visited paris." (Incorrect - "Paris" should be capitalized.)

Forgetting singular vs. plural agreement: "The dogs is barking." (Incorrect - "dogs" is plural, so it should be "The dogs are barking.")

SAT TIP: Remember nouns in prepositional phrases that try to confuse subject-verb agreement!

Incorrect: "The group of students are excited."
Correct: "The group of students is excited." ("Group" is singular.)

---

2. PRONOUNS

A pronoun replaces a noun to avoid repetition and make the context easier to understand.

Types of Pronouns:

1. Personal Pronouns: I, you, he, she, it, we, they
2. Possessive Pronouns: my, your, his, her, its, our, their
3. Demonstrative Pronouns: this, that, these, those
4. Relative Pronouns: who, whom, whose, which, that
5. Interrogative Pronouns: who, whom, which, what
6. Indefinite Pronouns: someone, anybody, everything, nothing

Correct Usage:

- She loves reading books. (Personal Pronoun)
- This book is mine. (Possessive Pronoun)
- Who is coming to the meeting tomorrow? (Interrogative Pronoun)

Common Mistakes:

Confusing "its" vs. "it's": "The cat lost it's toy." (Incorrect – should be "its.")
Using unclear pronoun references: "He told him that he should study." (Who should study?)

SAT Tip: College Board likes to test pronoun-antecedent agreement. Watch out for indefinite pronouns!

Incorrect: "Each of the students are responsible for their work."
Correct: "Each of the students is responsible for his or her work." ("Each" is singular.)

---

3. VERBS

A verb expresses action or state of being. In English, there are three types of verbs: action, linking, and helping verbs.

Types of Verbs:

1. Action verbs: run, write, jump
2. Linking verbs: is, are, was, seem
3. Helping verbs: has, have, will, can

Correct Usage:

She runs every morning. (Action Verb)
They are happy with their results. (Linking Verb)
He has finished his assignment. (Helping + Main Verb)

Common Mistakes:

Subject-verb agreement: "The list of students are long." (Incorrect – should be "is long.")

Misusing "has" vs. "have": "She have a dog." (Incorrect – should be "She has a dog.")

SAT Trick: College Board sometimes hides the real subject between prepositional phrases.

Incorrect: "The bouquet of flowers were beautiful."
Correct: "The bouquet of flowers was beautiful." ("Bouquet" is singular.)

---

4. ADJECTIVES

An adjective is used to describe a noun or pronoun, giving information about size, quality, shape, and quantity.

Correct Usage:

The blue sky looked beautiful. (Color)
She bought three apples. (Quantity)
The movie was boring. (Quality)

Common Mistakes:

Confusing adjectives and adverbs: "She speaks fluent." (Incorrect – should be "fluently.")

Using double comparatives: "This is more better than that." (Incorrect – should be "better than that.")

SAT Trick: Be careful with adjectives modifying multiple nouns.

Incorrect: "She bought a red and blue dress." (Did she buy one dress with red and blue colors, or two dresses?)

Correct: "She bought a red-and-blue dress." (One dress) OR "She bought a red and a blue dress." (Two dresses)

---

5. ADVERBS

An adverb modifies a verb, adjective, or another adverb by describing how, when, where, or to what extent an action is performed.

Correct Usage:

He ran quickly to catch the bus. (Modifies a verb)
The soup is very hot. (Modifies an adjective)
She spoke too softly. (Modifies another adverb)

Common Mistakes:

Confusing adverbs and adjectives: "She sings beautiful." (Incorrect – should be "beautifully.")

Using double negatives: "He didn't do nothing." (Incorrect – should be "He didn't do anything.")

SAT Trick: The SAT often tests adverb placement—be careful when modifying verbs and adjectives!

Incorrect: She quick finished her work.
Correct: She quickly finished her work.

---

6. PREPOSITIONS

A preposition shows the relationship between a noun/pronoun and another word in the sentence. They indicate direction, location, time, or manner.

Examples:

1. Direction: to, into, from, towards
2. Location: in, on, at, under
3. Time: before, after, during
4. Manner: by, with, like

Correct Usage:

The book is on the table. (Location)
She walked into the room. (Direction)
I will call you after dinner. (Time)

Common Mistakes:

Incorrect use of prepositions: "She is in the bus." (Incorrect – should be "She is on the bus.")

Confusing "between" and "among": "The prize was split between five people." (Incorrect – "between" is used for two, "among" for more than two.)

---

7. CONJUNCTIONS

A conjunction connects words, phrases, or clauses. There are three types of conjunctions.

Types of Conjunctions:

1. Coordinating Conjunctions: FANBOYS (For, And, Nor, But, Or, Yet, So)
2. Subordinating Conjunctions: because, although, while, since, if
3. Correlative Conjunctions: either...or, neither...nor, not only...but also

Correct Usage:

I wanted to go out, but it was raining. (Coordinating)

She stayed home because she was sick. (Subordinating)

Either you study hard or you fail. (Correlative)

SAT Tip: Be mindful of comma usage before conjunctions.

Incorrect: "She went to the store and, she bought milk."

Correct: "She went to the store, and she bought milk."

Chapter I — Final Review

- Every word has a job in a sentence. Knowing these jobs helps you avoid mistakes.
- Nouns: Name people, places, things, or ideas. Check for correct singular/plural forms and capitalization.
- Pronouns: Replace nouns. Make sure they clearly refer to the right person or thing.
- Verbs: Show action or state. The subject and verb must always match (singular/plural).
- Adjectives: Describe nouns. Don't use double comparatives (e.g., "more better" → "better").
- Adverbs: Describe verbs, adjectives, or other adverbs. Place them correctly in a sentence.
- Prepositions: Show location, direction, or time (e.g., on, in, under, before). Use the right one.
- Conjunctions: Connect words or sentences (e.g., and, but, because). Use commas correctly.
- SAT Tip: Be careful with subject-verb agreement, pronouns, and misplaced words.

THE END OF CHAPTER I

II. SENTENCE STRUCTURE & TYPES

This section covers:

- Sentence and Fragment
- Independent and Dependent Clauses
- Types of Sentences: Simple, Compound, Complex, and Compound-Complex
- Transforming Simple Sentences into Complex Ones

---

1. Sentence and Fragment

A sentence is a group of words that expresses a complete thought and contains a subject and a verb.

Examples:

1. She loves to read novels.
2. The sun is shining brightly.

A fragment is an incomplete sentence that lacks a subject, a verb, or a complete thought.

Common Mistakes:

1. Runs fast and jumps high. (Missing subject)
2. The boy with the red jacket. (Missing verb)
3. Because she was tired. (Incomplete thought)

Fixed Version:

1. She runs fast and jumps high.
2. The boy with the red jacket is waiting outside.
3. Because she was tired, she went to bed early.

SAT Tip: Be aware of sentence fragments that appear correct at first glance. Ensure every sentence expresses a full thought.

2. Independent And Dependent Clause

A clause is a group of words containing a subject and a verb. Clauses can be independent or dependent.

Independent Clause: Expresses a complete thought and can stand alone.

- She enjoys reading novels.
- The sun is shining.

Dependent Clause: Cannot stand alone and needs an independent clause.

- Because she enjoys reading novels.
- Although the sun is shining.

To form a complete sentence, a dependent clause must be connected to an independent clause:

Example 1: Because she enjoys reading novels, she buys a new book every month.

Dependent Clause: Because she enjoys reading novels

Independent Clause: She buys a new book every month.

Example 2: It is still cold outside although the sun is shining.

Independent Clause: It is still cold outside.

Dependent Clause: Although the sun is shining.

Example 3: Since we went to the park, we were tired by the evening.

Dependent Clause: Since we went to the park.

Independent Clause: We were tired by the evening.

How to make Independent Clause Dependent?

An independent clause is a complete sentence that can stand on its own. To make it dependent, consider the following methods:

Using Subordinating Conjunctions A subordinating conjunction connects a dependent clause to an independent clause, showing relationships like cause, time, condition, contrast, or purpose.

1. Cause-Effect: because, since, as, for the reason that
2. Time: when, after, before, since, until, as soon as, while
3. Condition: if, unless, provided that, as long as
4. Contrast: although, though, even though, whereas, while
5. Purpose: so that, in order that

Transformation Examples:

She enjoys reading books. → Because she enjoys reading books, she buys a new one every month.

The sun is shining. → Although the sun is shining, it is still cold outside.

Using Relative Pronouns A relative pronoun connects a clause to a noun or pronoun, making it dependent. These include:

1. Used for people: who, whom, whose
2. Used for things: which, that
3. Used for places, time, and reasons: where, when, why

Transformation Examples:

She has a friend. → She has a friend who loves to travel.

The book is interesting. → The book that I borrowed is interesting.

Using '-ing' or '-ed' Phrases (Reduced Clauses) Another way to turn an independent clause into a dependent clause is by using participial phrases (verb forms ending in -ing or -ed).

Transformative Examples:

She walked down the street. → Walking down the street, she saw an old friend.

He was surprised by the news. → Surprised by the news, he was unaware.

Summary:

Add a subordinating conjunction (e.g., because, although, if)
Use a relative pronoun (e.g., who, which, where)
Turn the verb into a phrase (-ing or -ed form)

By using these techniques, you can transform independent clauses into dependent ones, making sentences more complex and fluid—a critical skill for SAT and academic writing.

2. TYPES OF SENTENCES

Sentences are categorized based on the number and types of clauses they contain. They are:

Simple Sentence	Independent	She studies every day.
Complex Sentence	Dep + Ind	Because she studies every day, she gets good grades
Compound Sentence	Ind + Ind	She studies daily, and she plays soccer
Complex Compound Sentence	Ind + Ind/Dep + Dep	Because she studies daily, she gets good grades, and she feels confident

Here are more examples for each type of sentence

Simple Sentence

The dog barks loudly at night.
She enjoys reading novels.

Complex Sentence

Studying SAT, I want to apply for foreign universities.
Although he was tired, he continued working on this project.

Compound Sentence

She enjoys reading novels, and she often visits the library
It was raining outside, so we stayed indoors and played chess

Complex-Compound Sentence

Since she loves books, she reads every day, and she writes book reviews online.
Although it was cold, they went for a walk, but they returned home quickly.

How to make complex sentences?

A complex sentence consists of one independent clause and at least one dependent clause. The dependent clause cannot stand alone and must be connected to an independent clause for the sentence to be complete. There are three ways to make up complex sentences. They are:

1. USING SUBORDINATING CONJUNCTION

Subordinating conjunctions connect a dependent clause to an independent clause and show logical relationship.

Cause-Effect	because, since, as, for the reason that
Time	when, after, before, since, until, as soon as, while
Condition	if, unless, provided that, as long as
Contrast	although, though, even though, whereas, while
Purpose	so that, in order that

Sentence Placement Rule:

If the dependent clause comes first, use a comma.

Although it was raining, we went outside

If the dependent clause comes after, no comma is needed

We went outside although it was raining
We went outside, though it was raining.

Exception: When "While" Indicates Contrast

When "while" is used to show contrast instead of time, it behaves more like "although" or "whereas." In this case, a comma is required even when the dependent clause comes second.

Example of "While" Showing Contrast (Comma Needed):

I prefer tea, while my brother enjoys coffee.

She is introverted, while her sister is outgoing.

Example of "While" Showing Time-marker (No Comma Needed):

My sister set the table while I was cooking.
I was listening to music while sleeping.

Key Difference:

"While" as a time marker → no comma if the dependent clause comes second.

"While" as a contrast word → always use a comma.

2. USING RELATIVE PRONOUNS

A relative pronoun connects a clause to a noun or pronoun, making it dependent. These words include:

Used for people	Who, whom, whose
Used for things	Which, that
Used for places, time, and reasons	Where, when, why

Example Sentences:

The student who won the contest is my best friend.
The book that I borrowed was fascinating.
I remember the day when we first met.

---

3. REDUCED CLAUSES INTO PHRASES

Sometimes, a dependent clause can be reduced to a phrase while maintaining the complex sentence structure. They are also called participles

Example Transformation:

Full Clause: Because she was exhausted, she went to bed early.

Reduced Clause: Being exhausted, she went to bed early.

Example Transformation with Relative Clauses:

Full Clause: The student who studies hard gets good grades.
Reduced Clause: The student studying hard gets good grades.

How to make Compound Sentences?

A compound sentence consists of two or more independent clauses joined together. Each independent clause expresses a complete thought and can stand alone as a sentence. Compound sentences improve writing by connecting related ideas smoothly and making sentences more engaging.

1. Ways to Form a Compound Sentence

Using Coordinating Conjunctions (FANBOYS)

The most common way to make a compound sentence is by joining two independent clauses with a coordinating conjunction (FANBOYS)

FANBOYS Coordinating Conjunctions

CONJUNCTIONS	Function	Example
For	Reasons/Cause	She stayed inside, for it was raining.
And	Addition	She loves tea, and she enjoys coffee.
Nor	Negative choice	He didn't call, nor did he text.
But	Contrast	I wanted to go out, but I was too tired
Or	Alternative	You can take the bus, or you can walk.
Yet	Unexpected Contrast	She is young, yet she is very wise.
So	Result	It was late, so we went home.

Use a comma before FANBOYS when joining two independent clauses.

Incorrect: I wanted to go out but I was too tired.

Correct: I wanted to go out, but I was too tired.

Using semicolons (;) and dot (.)

A semicolon (;) and dot (.) can join two closely related independent clauses without a conjunction.

Example Sentences:

1) She enjoys painting; her brother prefers photography.
2) The test was difficult. Many students struggled.

Note:

There is no difference between the usage of semicolon and dot. When both punctuations come in the options, you can easily remove both options without any hesitation.

Using Colon (:) in specific case

A colon (:) is a punctuation mark used to introduce, explain, or expand upon a statement. While colons are most commonly used before lists or explanations, they can also combine two independent clauses when the second clause explains, elaborates on, or defines the first clause.

Example:

She had one goal: she wanted to win the championship. (Explanation)
There was only one thing left to do: pack our bags and leave. (Clarification)
He finally understood why he was struggling: he had never asked for help. (Cause & Effect)

Note:

You cannot use a colon if the second sentence does not directly explain or expand the first sentence.

Correct: He made a choice: he will pursue his dream career.
Incorrect: He made a choice: his dream career was difficult. (Not an explanation, semicolon or dot would be better)

Chapter II – Final Review

- A sentence must have a subject and a verb to express a complete thought.
- Fragments are incomplete sentences—make sure they have both a subject and a verb.
- Independent clauses can stand alone; dependent clauses need an independent clause to form a full sentence.
- Types of sentences:

  Simple: One independent clause (She studies daily.)
  Complex: One independent + one dependent clause (Because she studies daily, she gets good grades.)
  Compound: Two independent clauses (She studies daily, and she plays soccer.)
  Complex-Compound: At least two independent and one dependent clause (Because she studies daily, she gets good grades, and she feels confident.)

- Ways to make complex sentences:

  Use subordinating conjunctions (because, although, if)
  Use relative pronouns (who, which, where)
  Use reduced clauses (Being exhausted, she went to bed early.)

- Ways to make compound sentences:

  Use FANBOYS (For, And, Nor, But, Or, Yet, So) with a comma.
  Use a semicolon (;) or period (.) between two independent clauses.
  Use a colon (:) only when the second clause explains the first.

SAT Tip: Watch for sentence fragments, misplaced commas, and incorrect clause combinations.

THE END OF CHAPTER II

III. PUNCTUATION

Punctuation is essential for clarity and precision in writing. Misplaced or missing punctuation can change the meaning of a sentence and lead to confusion.

1. COMMA (,)

Commas separate elements in a sentence to improve clarity and readability.

Usage Rules:

To separate items in a list →

Correct: He bought books, pens, and a notebook. (if you count more than two items)

Incorrect: He bought books, pens and a notebook. (Oxford comma missing)

Before FANBOYS (for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so) in compound sentences →

Correct: She was tired, but she finished her work.
Incorrect: She was tired but she finished her work. (Missing comma before "but")

After an introductory phrase →

Correct: According to the study, more students are taking online courses.
Incorrect: According to the study more students are taking online courses. (Missing comma after the introductory phrase)

Before quotation marks →

Correct: She said, ‘I love learning new languages.’
Incorrect: She said ‘I love learning new languages.’ (Missing comma before the quotation)

To set off nonessential clauses →

Correct: My sister, who lives in London, is visiting soon.
Incorrect: My sister who lives in London is visiting soon. (No commas, changing the meaning)

Key difference between Essential and Non-essential Clause

Non-Essential Clause

My sister, who is a doctor, loves her job. *(You have only one sister; her being a doctor is extra information.)*

Professor Abdusattor, who is working at Oxford University, is lecturing very well. (When we already know this professor is working at Oxford or when this information does not add any additional meaning, comma is needed)

Essential Clause

My sister who is a doctor loves her job. (You have more than one sister, and only the one who is a doctor loves her job).

The book which I borrowed from the library is very interesting. (You borrowed several books from different places, but you want to emphasize that this specific book you got from library is interesting)

To separate coordinate adjectives →

Correct: She adopted a cute, playful puppy.
Incorrect: She adopted a cute playful puppy. (Missing comma between adjectives)

Common Mistakes:

Comma Splice → She loves music, she plays the guitar." (Incorrect) → "She loves music, and she plays the guitar. (Correct)

Unnecessary Commas → The cake, that I baked, was delicious." (Incorrect) → "The cake that I baked was delicious. (Correct – "that I baked" is essential information.)

SAT Tip: The test often includes unnecessary commas. If the sentence makes sense without the comma, it might not be needed.

2. DASH (—)

A dash (—) is used for emphasis, interruptions, and adding extra information.

> Correct: The trip—which we had planned for months—was canceled.
>
> Incorrect: The trip, which we had planned for months—was canceled. (Incorrect punctuation mix)

Usage Rules:

To add extra information (stronger than parentheses) → The teacher—who had over 20 years of experience—won the award.

To replace a colon for emphasis → There was only one thing left to do—run!

SAT Tip: The SAT rarely tests the difference between M-dash and N-dash. Focus on recognizing M-dash usage for separating non-essential clauses or replacing colons. Additionally, you can sometimes use M-dash to replace a colon.

---

3. PARENTHESIS ()

Parentheses enclose additional, non-essential information within a sentence.

> Correct: My brother (who lives in New York) is visiting next week.
>
> Incorrect: My brother who lives in New York is visiting next week. (No parentheses, changing the meaning)

Usage Rules:

To separate non-essential clauses → The Eiffel Tower (one of the most famous landmarks) attracts tourists.

To enclose abbreviations or acronyms → She joined the United Nations (UN) in 2023.

SAT Tip: Parentheses should not replace commas in essential clauses. If the information is critical to the sentence's meaning, do not use parentheses

---

4. SEMICOLON (;)

A semicolon is stronger than a comma but weaker than a period. It connects closely related independent clauses and separates complex list items.

Correct: She loves reading; her brother prefers watching movies.

Incorrect: She loves reading, her brother prefers watching movies. (Comma splice)

Usage Rules:

To join two independent clauses → She worked hard; she deserved the promotion.

To separate items in a list with internal commas → We traveled to Paris, France; Rome, Italy; and Madrid, Spain.

SAT Tip: If a semicolon and a period appear as answer choices and there are no other differences, eliminate both options.

---

5. PERIOD (.)

A period is the most basic punctuation mark, signaling the end of a sentence. It can replace a semicolon if both clauses are independent.

Examples:

She enjoys writing stories.

Rules:

To end a declarative sentence → The sun is shining.

To complete a statement in a formal tone → The results were conclusive.

SAT Tip: If both a semicolon (;) and a period (.) appear in the answer choices and there are no other differences, eliminate both options.

Chapter III – Final Review

- Punctuation makes writing clear. Misplacing it can change meaning.
- Commas (,): Separate items in a list, before FANBOYS, after introductory phrases, and around nonessential clauses.
- Dashes (—): Add emphasis or replace colons in a sentence.
- Parentheses (): Hold extra, non-essential information or abbreviations.
- Semicolons (;): Connect closely related sentences or separate complex list items.
- Periods (.): End sentences and formal statements.
- SAT Tip: Watch for unnecessary commas and correct semicolon/period usage.

THE END OF CHAPTER III

SATASHKENT

IV. FORM, STRUCTURE & SENSE

Sense & Agreement in grammar refers to how different elements in a sentence must match in meaning and form to create logical, clear, and grammatically correct sentences. This includes Subject-Verb Agreement, Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement, Possessives, Parallelism, and Modifier Placement. This section covers:

1. Subject-Verb Agreement
2. Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement
3. Possessives and Apostrophes
4. Parallelism
5. Modifier Placement

1. Subject-Verb Agreement

Subject-verb agreement ensures that the verb matches the subject in number (singular or plural).

Correct Usage:

1. A singular subject needs a singular verb: "The dog is eating."
2. A plural subject needs a plural verb: "The dogs are eating."

Examples:

Correct: "The teacher with several advanced degrees inspires her students daily."
Incorrect: "The teacher with several advanced degrees inspire her students daily."

Correct: "Each of the books is interesting."
Incorrect: "Each of the books are interesting."

Correct: "Either she or they are coming."
Incorrect: "Either she or they is coming."

Advanced Rules:

The noun closest to the verb is not always the subject:

Correct: "The laptop with multiple ports was released last year."
Incorrect: "The laptop with multiple ports were released last year."

Correct: "The teacher with several advanced degrees inspires her students daily."
Incorrect: "The teacher with several advanced degrees inspire her students daily."

Collective nouns (team, country, government, etc.) are singular:

Correct: "The group of students is growing very fast."
Correct: "The groups of students are growing very fast." ("Groups" is plural.)
Incorrect: “The group of students are growing very fast.”

Correct: "The collection of paintings is incredible."
Incorrect: “The collection of paintings are incredible”

Each, every, everything are singular:

Correct: "Each boy, each girl, and each cat has its own interest."
Incorrect: “Each boy, each girl, and each cat have its own interest”

Correct: "Every bird sings differently."
Incorrect: “Each bird sing differently.”

Gerunds (-ING words) are singular:

Correct: "Reading books is a healthy habit."
Incorrect: “Reading books are a healthy habit”

Correct: "Eating bananas helps people stay healthy."
Incorrect: “Eating bananas help people stay healthy”

Two subjects joined by "AND" are plural:

Correct: "My brother and sister enjoy hiking in the mountains."
Incorrect: “My brother and sister enjoys hiking in the mountains.”

Correct: "The teacher and the principal are discussing the new curriculum."
Incorrect: “The teacher and the principal is discussing the new curriculum.”

Two subjects joined by "OR" or "NOR" follow the closest subject:

Correct: "Either Ali or Vali is cheating now."
Incorrect: “Either Ali or Vali are cheating now.”

Correct: "Neither Abdurashid nor John is playing chess."
Incorrect: “Neither Abdurashid nor John are playing chess.”

Correct: "Either she or they are coming." ("They" is plural → verb is plural.)
Incorrect: “Either she or they is coming.” ("They" is plural → verb is plural.)

Correct: "Either they or she is coming." ("She" is singular → verb is singular.)
Incorrect: “Either they or she are coming” ("She" is singular → verb is singular.)

Common Mistakes:

Trick with Prepositional Phrases:

Incorrect: "The box of apples are on the table." → Correct: "The box of apples is on the table."

Confusing collective nouns:

Incorrect: "The team are winning." → Correct: "The team is winning."

SAT Tip: The College Board often places prepositional phrases or interrupting clauses between the subject and verb to mislead test-takers.

"A collection of rare books was donated to the library." ("Collection" is singular.)

---

2. Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

Pronoun-antecedent agreement means that a pronoun must agree with its antecedent (the noun it refers to) in number, gender, and person. The noun to which a pronoun refers (antecedent or referent) will not always appear in the same sentence; you may need to look at the sentence before.

Correct vs. Incorrect Examples:

Correct: "Each student must bring his or her book."
Incorrect: "Each student must bring their book."

Correct: "All visitors must hold their tickets in their hands."
Incorrect: "All visitors must hold his or her tickets in their hands."

Correct: "Every boy should do his best."
Incorrect: "Every boy should do their best."

Correct: "The team has won its first championship."
Incorrect: "The team has won their first championship."

Rules:

Number Agreement (Singular vs. Plural):

Correct: "Each student must bring his or her book."
Incorrect: "Each student must bring their book."

Gender Agreement: If the antecedent is singular and refers to a specific gender, the pronoun must match that gender.

Correct: "Every boy should do his best."
Incorrect: "Every boy should do their best."

Indefinite Pronouns (Each, Everyone, Anybody, etc.) are Singular:

Correct: "Everyone should bring his or her ID."
Incorrect: "Everyone should bring their ID."

Collective Nouns (Team, Jury, Family) can be singular or plural depending on context:

Correct: "The team has won its first championship." (As a unit)
Incorrect: "The team has won their first championship."

Correct: "The team put on their jerseys before the game." (As individuals)
Incorrect: "The team put on its jerseys before the game."

SAT Tip: The College Board often tests ambiguous pronoun references. Always ensure the antecedent is clear and matches in number and gender.

3. Possessives and Apostrophes

Possessives show ownership and require correct apostrophe placement.

Correct vs. Incorrect Examples:

Correct: "The teacher's book is interesting."
Incorrect: "The teachers book is interesting."

Correct: "The boy's pen is blue."
Incorrect: "The boys pen is blue."

Rules:

Singular Possessives: Add 's to singular nouns to show possession.

Correct: "The teacher's book is interesting."
Incorrect: "The teachers book is interesting."

Plural Possessives: Add only ' to plural nouns ending in "s."

Correct: "The teachers' handbooks are easy to understand."
Incorrect: "The teacher's handbooks are easy to understand."

Possessive vs. Plural Confusion:

Correct: "My friends' books are way more expensive."
Incorrect: "My friend's books are way more expensive." (Implies only one friend)

SAT Tip: Look carefully at whether the noun is singular or plural before adding the apostrophe. The test often includes answer choices with misplaced apostrophes to confuse students.

4. Parallelism

Parallelism (or parallel structure) means that elements in a sentence that are listed, paired, or compared should have the same grammatical form. This creates clarity, readability, and flow in writing.

Correct: "She enjoys reading, writing, and painting." (All gerunds)
Incorrect: "She enjoys reading, to write, and painting." (Mixing gerunds and infinitives)

Correct: "The manager is responsible for hiring employees, organizing meetings, and supervising projects."
Incorrect: "The manager is responsible for hiring employees, organizing meetings, and to supervise projects."

Correct: "She is both smart and hardworking." (Both adjectives)
Incorrect: "She is both smart and works hard." (Mixing adjective and verb)

Correct: "He is not only a great teacher but also a talented musician." (Both noun phrases)
Incorrect: "He is not only a great teacher but also plays the guitar." (Mixing noun phrase and verb)

Parallelism in Lists: Items in a list must have the same grammatical form.

> Correct: "She enjoys reading, writing, and painting."
> Incorrect: "She enjoys reading, to write, and painting."

Parallelism in Pairs: Words or phrases connected by “both...and,” “either...or,” or “not only...but also” should have the same structure.

> Correct: "She is both intelligent and diligent."
> Incorrect: "She is both intelligent and studies hard."

Parallelism in Comparisons: When comparing two ideas, the sentence structure should remain consistent.

> Correct: "She prefers running to swimming."
> Incorrect: "She prefers running to swim."

Parallelism in Correlative Conjunctions: Structures using “either...or” and “neither...nor” must be grammatically parallel.

Correct: "You can either call me or send me a message."

Incorrect: "You can either call me or sending me a message."

Common Mistakes:

Mixing verb forms:
"He is not only a great teacher but also plays the guitar." (Incorrect) → "He is not only a great teacher but also a talented musician." (Correct)

Inconsistent structure in lists:
"The manager is responsible for hiring employees, organizing meetings, and to supervise projects." (Incorrect) → "The manager is responsible for hiring employees, organizing meetings, and supervising projects." (Correct)

SAT Tip: The College Board often includes answer choices where one element of the sentence does not match the others grammatically. Watch for inconsistencies in structure when listing, comparing, or pairing ideas.

5. Modifier Placement

A modifier occurs when the word being modified is missing or placed incorrectly in the sentence, making it unclear who or what is being described. Modifiers should be placed as close as possible to the word they modify to avoid confusion.

Usage:

The subject being modified must be clearly identified and positioned correctly.

Correct: "After passing the exam, Alisa felt relieved."

Incorrect: "After passing the exam, relief overwhelmed Alisa." (Who passed the exam?)

The modifier should logically describe the intended subject.

Correct: "Studying biology and chemistry, I want to be a doctor in the future."

Incorrect: "Studying biology and chemistry, a doctor is what I want to be." (Did the doctor study biology and chemistry?)

Modifiers at the beginning of the sentence should clearly point to the correct subject.

Correct: "Opened in 2024, the company fRapture has recently launched the course about admission."

Incorrect: "Opened in 2024, the course was recently launched by fRapture." (Did the course open in 2024?)

Common Mistakes:

Dangling Modifier: The word being modified is missing.

> Incorrect: "After finishing the book, the movie was disappointing." (Who finished the book?)
>
> Correct: "After finishing the book, I found the movie disappointing."

Misplaced Modifier: The modifier is placed too far from the word it describes.

> Incorrect: "She nearly drove her kids to school for an hour." (Did she almost drive or did the drive take an hour?)
>
> Correct: "She drove her kids to school for nearly an hour."

SAT Tip: The College Board often places modifiers at the beginning or middle of a sentence where their meaning can be ambiguous. Always check that the subject being modified is clearly stated right after the modifier.

Chapter IV – Final Review

- Subject-Verb Agreement: A singular subject needs a singular verb; a plural subject needs a plural verb. (The dog is barking. The dogs are barking.)
- Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement: A pronoun must match its noun in number and gender. (Each student must bring his or her book.)
- Possessives & Apostrophes: Use 's for singular possession (The teacher's book) and s' for plural possession (The teachers' books).
- Parallelism: Keep sentence elements in the same form. (She enjoys reading, writing, and painting. NOT She enjoys reading, to write, and painting.)

- Modifier Placement: Modifiers should be placed close to the word they describe. (After passing the exam, Alisa felt relieved. NOT After passing the exam, relief overwhelmed Alisa.)
- SAT Tip: Watch out for tricky prepositional phrases, ambiguous pronouns, misplaced modifiers, and inconsistent sentence structures.

CHAPTER V – How to Approach Grammar Questions?

Step 1: Start Backwards (From Question 27 to 1)

Why? The last few questions (usually transitions and rhetorical questions) require more critical thinking and take more time. Solving these first allows you to build momentum before tackling straightforward grammar questions.

Example:

Solve transitions and logical connection questions first (e.g., "Which transition best connects these ideas?").

Once those are done, move on to grammar-based questions.

Step 2: Solving Grammar Questions – Focus on Structure First

Key Strategy: For "Boundaries" questions, first identify independent and dependent clauses.

If a sentence has two independent clauses, check for commas, semicolons, or conjunctions.

If a sentence has one independent and one dependent clause, check for commas or subordinating conjunctions.

Example Question:

Incorrect: She loves to read, she writes stories every weekend.

Correct: She loves to read; she writes stories every weekend. (Two independent clauses → semicolon needed)

Step 3: Check Answer Choices for Grammar First, Meaning Second

Why? Checking punctuation based on meaning first is a waste of time. Instead, follow a structured approach:

1. Check if the punctuation is grammatically correct.
2. If two punctuations could work, then check the meaning.

Example:

Which punctuation correctly separates the two clauses?

A) The teacher explained the rule: the students still had questions.
B) The teacher explained the rule, the students still had questions.
C) The teacher explained the rule; the students still had questions.

1) Check grammar → "The students still had questions" is an independent clause, so a comma (B) is incorrect.
2) Check meaning → Both (A) and (C) could be correct, but (C) is more appropriate unless the second clause explains the first.

3x1 Tactics for Form, Structure, and Sense Questions

The 3x1 tactic is based on a common pattern in the Digital SAT. In Form, Structure, and Sense questions, three answer choices are similar and incorrect, while only one is different and correct.

Key Rule: Three wrong choices share the same error, while one correct choice follows Standard English conventions.

This tactic applies to Subject-Verb Agreement, Verb Tense, and Sentence Boundaries.

Example 1: Subject-Verb Agreement

Question:

Kizomba, a genre of dance that originated in Angola, has become an international ____ 2022, the Indian dance duo known as Elvis and Namrata defeated performers from around the world to win the annual Olympiads of Kizomba competition held in Paris, France, becoming the first-ever Asian winners.

Answer Choices:

A) phenomenon in
B) phenomenon and in
C) phenomenon. In
D) phenomenon, in

Step 1: Identify the Pattern

1. Three wrong choices (A, B, and D) create a dependent clause.
2. One correct choice (C) creates an independent clause.

Step 2: Check for Sentence Boundaries

1. "2022, the Indian dance duo..." is an independent clause.
2. Only "phenomenon. In" (C) correctly separates the clauses.

Correct Answer: C) phenomenon. In

SAT Trick: Identifying the 3x1 Pattern Quickly. Look for three choices that follow one pattern and one outlier.

Example 2: Verb Tense & Form

Question:

Portrait of Marquess Massimilano Stampa is one of dozens of remaining works by the Italian Renaissance artist Sofonisba Anguissola. _____ in 1557, her painting can now be found at the Walters Art Museum in Baltimore.

Answer Choices:

A) Will complete
B) Completed
C) Completes
D) Was completed

Step 1: Identify the Pattern

1. Three choices (A, B, and C) contain active verbs.
2. One choice (D) is a passive verb (correct form for describing a painting's history).

Step 2: Check for Past Passive Voice

1. Since the painting was created in 1557, a past passive verb is needed.
2. "Was completed" (D) is the only correct answer.

Correct Answer: D) Was completed

Example 3: Present Simple for General Facts

Question:

The rough frog is a species of amphibian native to Australia. Currently, the frog's range ____ parts of northern New South Wales and southeastern Queensland.

Answer Choices:

A) Had included
B) Will have included
C) Includes
D) Included

Step 1: Identify the Pattern

1. Three choices (A, B, and D) use past or future tense.
2. One choice (C) uses the present simple (needed for general facts).

Step 2: Check for Present Simple Usage

1. Scientific facts and general truths require the present simple.
2. "Includes" (C) is the only correct answer.

Correct Answer: C) Includes

Final Takeaways for the 3x1 Tactic

Look for three choices that share the same pattern (tense, agreement, clause type).

Check if the outlier follows proper Standard English grammar.

Use sentence structure to eliminate incorrect dependent/independent clauses.

MODIFIER PLACEMENT

In the Digital SAT, modifier placement questions test whether modifying words, phrases, or clauses are correctly placed in a sentence. A misplaced modifier can make a sentence unclear, awkward, or even illogical.

Common Mistake: If the modifier is too far from the word it describes, the sentence becomes confusing or illogical.

Incorrect: Running late, the bus left without her.

Correct: Running late, she missed the bus

Here is the step-by-step approach on solving the modifier placement question in your practice test.

Step 1: Identify the Modifier

A modifier is a word or phrase that describes or adds detail to another part of the sentence

Incorrect: Hiking through the mountains, the view was breathtaking. (Who was hiking? The subject is missing.)

Correct: Hiking through the mountains, we enjoyed the breathtaking view.

Step 2: Find the Word Being Modified

A modifier must be placed as close as possible to the word it describes.

Example:

Tired and hungry, the sandwich was quickly eaten. (Who was tired and hungry? The sandwich?)

Tired and hungry, he quickly ate the sandwich.

SAT Trick: If the introductory phrase describes a person, the subject (noun/pronoun) must come immediately after the comma.

Step 3: Eliminate Answer Choices That Create Confusion

SAT modifier questions often present subtle changes in word order that completely change the sentence's meaning.

Example Question:

Which of the following correctly places the modifier?

A) Excited for the trip, Sarah packed her bags.
B) Excited for the trip, the bags were packed by Sarah.
C) Excited for the trip, there were bags packed by Sarah.
D) Excited for the trip, Sarah's bags were packed.

Step 1: Find the modifier → "Excited for the trip" (Who or what was excited for the trip?)

Step 2: Check if it is placed correctly → Only Sarah (A) makes sense.

Correct Answer: A) Excited for the trip, Sarah packed her bags.

Chapter V – Final Review

- Start with the last questions first (transitions and logic) before tackling grammar-based ones.
- Sentence Boundaries: Identify independent vs. dependent clauses before choosing punctuation. (She loves to read; she writes stories every weekend.)
- Grammar First, Meaning Second: Check if punctuation is grammatically correct before considering meaning.
- 3x1 Strategy: Three answer choices often share the same error, while one is correct. Use this to quickly spot the right answer.
- Modifier Placement: Modifiers must be close to the word they describe. (Excited for the trip, Sarah packed her bags. NOT Excited for the trip, the bags were packed by Sarah.)

SAT Tip: Look for sentence structure errors, misplaced modifiers, and the 3x1 answer pattern to eliminate wrong choices quickly!
